Vision

We aspire to grow a community of confident, compassionate, and capable learners who care for themselves, for others, and for the planet. Guided by our philosophy and Te Whāriki, we create a living curriculum that reflects our shared values of sustainability, connection, authenticity, opportunity, and community—ensuring every child can thrive as themselves and a valued member of Aotearoa New Zealand's diverse and dynamic future.

Philosophy

At the heart of our philosophy at Rose and Clive is a deep respect for whanaungatanga as the foundation for our centre and hapori to prosper. We believe that early childhood education is a shared journey where tamariki, whānau, kaiako, and the wider community come together to nurture growth, belonging, and lifelong learning. Tamariki are able to show up as themselves on a daily basis and thrive in an environment of acceptance, awhi & tautoko.

We recognise the power of relationships as the foundation of learning. Through meaningful interactions, we nurture trust, empathy, and teach social competence and respect among tamariki, kaiako, and whānau. We value each child's whakapapa and cultural identity, and we honour Te Tiriti o Waitangi through partnership, participation, and protection, ensuring that Māori perspectives and language are integral to our daily practice.

We view learning as a reciprocal process, ako, where tamariki and kaiako learn from one another, with Te Whakriki being the foundation of our practice. Our environment, while small, is mighty and is the foundation for rich opportunities of exploration, creativity, and challenge. We support each child to follow their interests, take risks, and discover their unique potential. Every experience is seen as a moment of possibility, fostering curiosity, confidence, and a sense of agency. Our Hiwa Ako curriculum is developing to enhance this with each session as we lean into and foster opportunity with individual tamariki passions.

We uphold kaitiakitanga, the guardianship of our environment, as a core value. Tamariki are encouraged to develop an awareness of their relationship with the natural world through exploration, curiosity, and care on our regular hikoi and through our Hiwa Ako program. Sustainable practices are woven into our daily life—reducing waste, reusing materials, and engaging with nature respectfully—empowering tamariki to see themselves as active caretakers of their world, now and for the future.

We see ourselves as part of a vibrant, connected community. Our centre is a place where whanau feel welcome, valued, and involved. We collaborate with local schools and community groups to strengthen tamariki's sense of belonging and contribution. Together, we build a supportive network that celebrates diversity, shares knowledge, and nurtures wellbeing for all.

Growing Up

AT ROSE AND CLIVE

From 6 weeks to 6 years old, our kaiako naturally nurture the unique needs and budding personality of your child through exploration and authentic discoveries.

0-2

During your child's time with us in the infants space, you will not only see, but feel our beliefs around what is best for babies. We believe in a kind and respectful partnership between adult and child. We do this through tender care moments, naturally paced motor development, free movement and uninterrupted play. This belief is derived from our understanding of the first 1000 days. This is a research based understanding that highlights the importance of infants developing a sense of safety, attachment and trust. Through this sense of belonging, children are able to build the pathways of becoming life-long learners. To support this research, we implement a true primary care model. Primary care relationships, in which each whaanau has a special kaiako who is there to nurture the child through their daily care moments, such as, bottle feeding, sleep rituals and nappy changing. This supports and continues to grow and strengthen the heart-centered partnership between kaiako and tamiti. As child advocates, we promote free movement. We uphold the Pikler approach in which, we believe in providing enough space and possibilities to move freely. This will result in the children moving skillfully, simply, securely and naturally at their own pace and readiness. We promise to nurture, respect and value your child and love them in a genuine way.

2-6

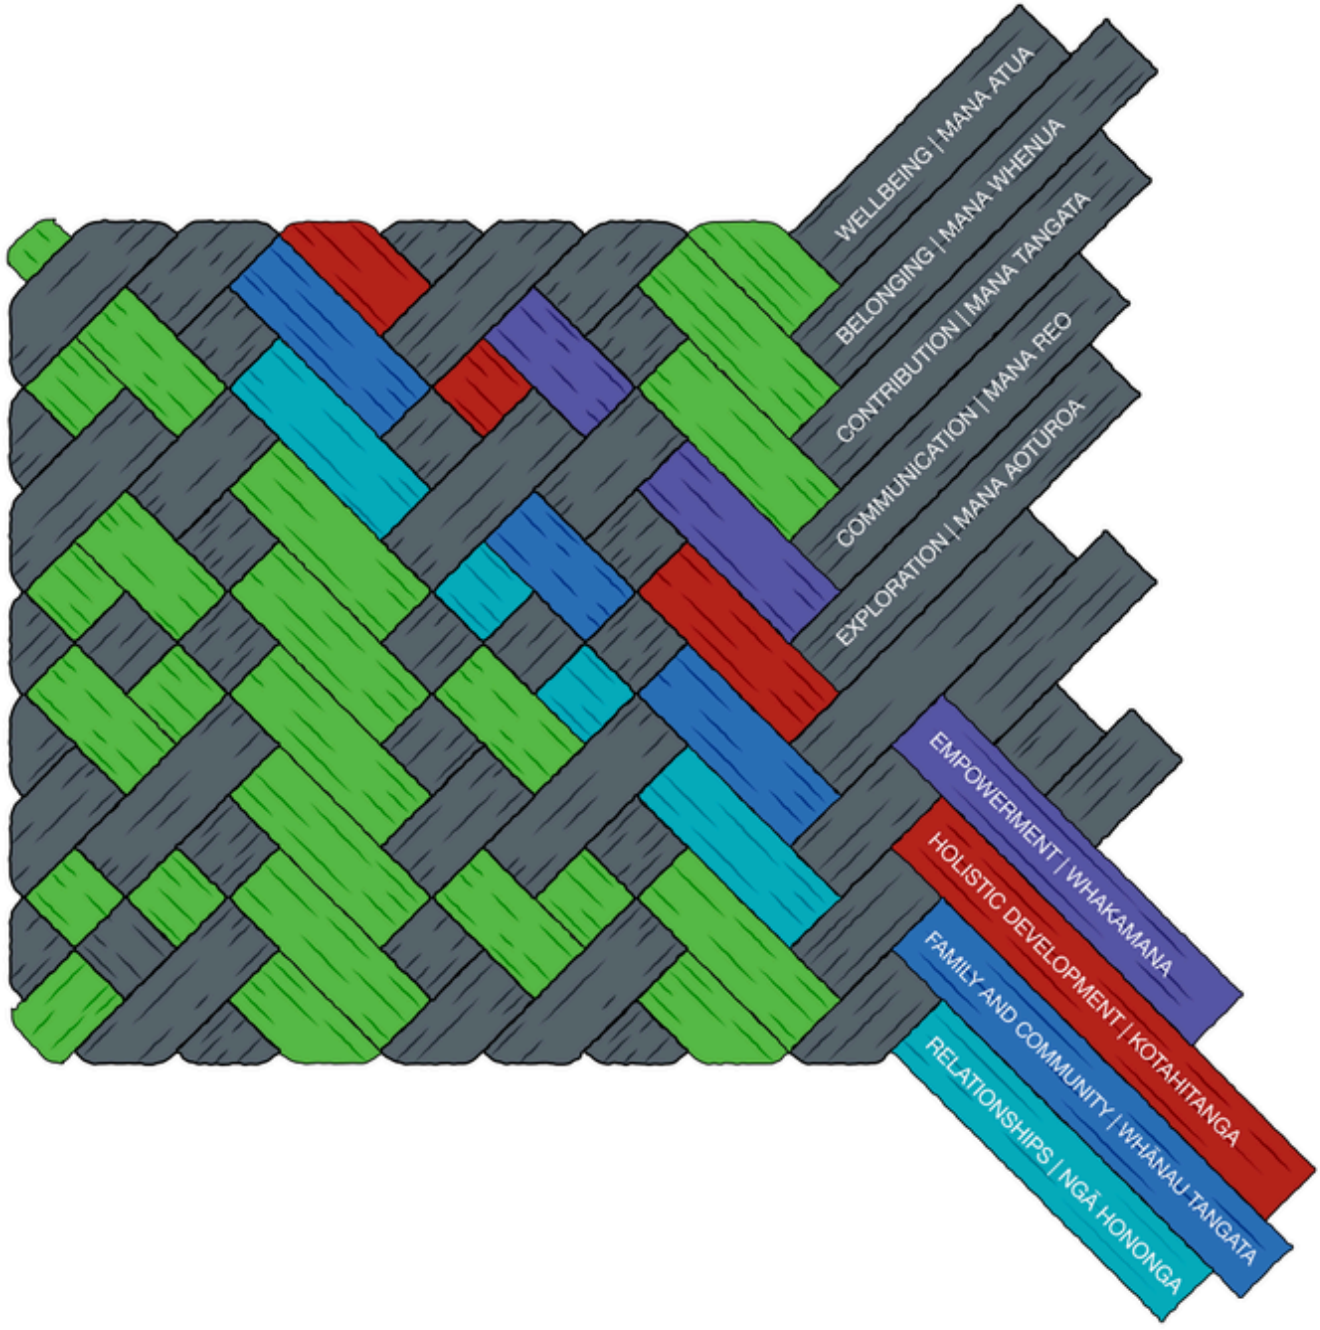

As your child transitions from our infants room, they will find their sense of belonging in our over two's space. We believe in tuakana-teina relationships, therefore, the space is shared for our over twos. In the over 2's space, we follow ritual over routine, where the rhythms of the day are guided by the relationships between whaanau and kaiako with tamariki are at the heart of all that we do. Through primary care relationships our kaiako and tamariki walk side by side on this part of their journey of empowerment. During their time with us, your child is learning to harness their own personal power as they continue to guide their learning and take their place as champion of their own story. We believe that all children should feel heard, seen and loved. We promise you, your child will be more than just a number, instead, they will be seen in a way in which their waiura is upheld. We do this by honouring the gifts each child brings with them from their whanau and the learning experiences. During this time, our kaiako will be working in partnership with your child to scaffold and support the three literacies to evolve within our tamariki. Social competency is what we consider this to be the greatest indicator for 'school readiness'. This might look like our tamariki practicing and working through conflict resolution, negotiation, empathy, asking for help, turn taking, standing up for oneself and seeing from another's perspective.

We encourage families to stay together so siblings can share their care experiences, and offer discounted rates to families with two or more children enrolled.

Our Learning Programme

AT ROSE AND CLIVE

Our play based programme is focuses around Te Whariki. Te Whariki is the New Zealand National Early Childhood Curriculum, which is world renowned. It emphasises the learning partnership between teachers, parents, and whanau/families. Te Whariki is founded on the aspiration for children “to grow up as competent and confident learners and communicators, healthy in mind, body, and spirit, secure in their sense of belonging and in the knowledge that they make a valued contribution to society.”
